GRAND CELEBRATION.

People From all Parts of the County Came to Marion to Celebrate the Fourth.

The Fourth of July celebration given by the business men of the city was a decided success and they are to be congratulated.

The Marion Cornet Band certainly deserve credit for furnishing such splendid music and lots of it.

Every one seemed to think the balloon ascension would be a dream but it was a reality.

One of the most interesting features of the day was the ball game between Marion and Providence resulting in a score of 15 to 1 in Marion's favor.

From the amount of confetti thrown one would think he was attending a street fair.

A very large crowd attended the celebration and partook of the business men's and Marion in general hospitality. The crowd was variously estimated at from 2000 to 3000 and all were orderly and well-behaved.

All Explained Now.

Last week the Crittenden RECORD-PRESS came out at noon instead of "after six o'clock as usual." The foreman, Cleveland Stone got the forms made up and had everything ready a full half day ahead of time. This had never occurred before although the "PRESS" and "RECORD-PRESS" had had a long and varied career. Of course it caused comment and as Cleve had celebrated his 23rd birthday and first wedding anniversary last week we did not think anything of it. Some did however and said "Cleve is getting ready to shoot fire-crackers and take a day off July fourth, and maybe go up in the balloon." Others surmised that he wanted to attend the ball game and see Marion wipe some amateur team off the earth. He claimed himself that he only wanted to get caught up so he could "work his garden Saturday." Sunday afternoon the matter was explained fully when it became known that Dr. Clement and the stork had left at his home a beautiful little girl of twelve pounds weight. Cleve smiled and said he was delighted.

The little lady was christened "Mary Rebecca" for her two grandmothers. She and her mother are getting along nicely, and to see Cleve smile you would know at once at a glance why the boys call him "catfish."

Kentucky Girl to be Hostess.

Denver, Colo., July 3.—The hostess of the Democratic National Convention will be Mrs. John E. Osborne, wife of the Governor of Wyoming. She was a former Kentucky belle and is not more than twenty years of age. She is a bride of a year. No Democrat in Denver has a higher regard for W. J. Bryan than Mrs. Osborne, who is truly Democratic, although she declares she is not interested in woman suffrage or any other political subject.

She admires Bryan however, although, by reason of his close acquaintance with her husband, he gave away the secret of their betrothal. When the commoner was touring Kentucky he suddenly turned to Urey Woodson, secretary of the National Committee, and told him, when they reached Princeton Ky., to hunt out the girl John Osborne was to wed.

Woodson had not heard a thing of the betrothal, but as Princeton is not so large, his task was not a hard one and by evening Princeton new Lena Smith was to become the first lady of Wyoming. On their way West Bryan met the happy couple at Lincoln, and Mrs. Osborne forgave him.

Mrs. Osborne is a niece of J. Bell

Kevil of this city and a first cousin of Miss Mabel Kevil.

Letter From Louisiana.

Tioga, La., July 3, 1908.
Dear Editor:

I thought that perhaps something from these parts would be interesting to some of your readers. This being my first attempt you should not expect much of me, but nevertheless I shall endeavor to give a brief description of our little southern town.

This is a saw-mill town six miles north of Alexandria, La., on Iron Mountain R. R. Founded in 1890 by Mr. J. M. Nagent a noted saw-mill operator of this district, born and reared here in old Rapids Parish and a purely self made man, rose to prominence by strict attention to business. Mr. Nagent accumulated quite a little fortune and was recently elected the State Senate from this district on the democratic ticket, but died directly afterward and did not serve in his office, the next operators connected with the saw mill here was the J. Lewis Lumber Co.,—A. Lewis manager and in succession the Tioga Lumber Co., succeeded in 1900 by the present owners the Lee Lumber Co.

Mr. O. H. Cooper local manager for this plant, has been burned out twice, the first burn was in 1895 and was a total burn out, the second was in 1906 and it was only a partial burn out which has been replaced with a better plant than the old one, the difference is as follows: the old plant was equipped with circular and pony mill and the present plant is equipped with circular and band saws.

We have a good electric light plant and the mill and town are supplied with water through pipes leading from a drilled well on the hill above the town. We have two churches, Baptist and Methodist also a good school building, a Free Mason hall, Woodmen hall and society is above the average for a saw mill town.

The financial crash which fell upon the country last year of course retarded business somewhat here as well as elsewhere, but after putting every thing on an average as regards demand and supply, I presume the Lee Lumber Co. has treated its employees quite fair or as much so as reasonably lay in their power to do. Owing to such high water in Red river crops have been cut very short, but some of the cotton fields would look rather long to we Kentucky people.

To my surprise on my way down here, I saw at Olla, La., L. C. Nunn, an old Crittenden county boy, who is cashier of the Olla National Bank. I do not know of only two of the old Crittenden county boys in La. but I am proud to say they are both to the front.

Well Mr. Jenkins if this is worthy of notice I shall try again some time and want to say the old paper seems dearer to me than ever before, it is always a warm friend.

I want to say before I close, that yesterday a large crowd of we young people went on a fishing spree had real good luck and gathered a plenty of magnolia blossoms and what we term as the chigger in Kentucky is known as the red bug here, and they are busy to-day.

Hoping this will find all the readers of the Record-Press in good health. I will ring off.

Respectfully,
ROY WOODY.

Governor Wilson And The Farmers.

Under the above heading the Lexington, (Ky.) Gazette prints the following editorial.

Governor Wilson has raised the serious question as to whether the movement of the tobacco growers is an honest sincere effort on the part of the men engaged in this industry to secure a fair price for their product or whether it is the scheme of shrewd, ambitious leaders to satisfy their own greed for gain and their ambition for power.

This new issue as to the tobacco situation was raised by the governor in his speech at Louisville at a meeting of the Law and Order League. It is an issue that cannot be ignored. It is evident that the governor does not believe that the organizations of the farmers have been undertaking and carried out for proper purposes and in good faith. He takes the position that they pretend to fight and they are really dominated by unworthy men, and their real purpose is to not benefit the farmers, but to give profit and power to a few ambitious leaders.

If the governor is right the Society of Equity and all of the organizations of farmers for advancing the price of tobacco ought to be stamped out and vigorous measures to be taken to this end. But the first requisite to this course is the positive proof of the justice of the charges made. The evidence upon which they are based ought to be produced.

If the governor is right he ought to convict those whom he accuses at the court of public opinion if he cannot convict them of violation of the law. If the governor is wrong he has done a gross injustice to many of the very best citizens of Kentucky. He has made grave charges not only against the whole body of farmers, but against their leaders. Whether right or wrong, as the matter now stands, he puts himself in the attitude of antagonism to every purpose of the Society of Equity and the organizations of the tobacco growers. He condemns not merely night riding, but the whole movement. He condemns not only night riders, but the whole body of the membership and the leaders of the farmers' organization.

The Gazette does not believe that the evidence now before the public justifies his position. We believe that he has disqualified himself for rendering any service toward a solution of one of the most important problems that now confront the state of Kentucky, until he can show beyond all question that his insinuations and accusations can be justified by actual facts.

The governor says that his soldiers have killed sixteen night riders. He says he knows the leader of the night riders. He claims to be possession of the details of their organization, including the oath that binds them together. After making these statements he goes farther with insinuations and charges that involve every man with any voice in the movement for higher prices for tobacco. His attitude is made all the more significant by what he claims to know.

The governor must make good or find himself in a most humiliating position. He must capture the leader of the night riders and his lieutenants. He must expose this oath-bound organization. He must give the names of the dead night riders killed by his soldiers with details of the fights in which they were slain. He must also make good in his attack on the integrity of the organized farmers and their leaders or stand before the state not only humiliated but discredited.

Put Yourself In The Grower's Place.

Miss Alice Lloyd, of Dover, Ky., whose short address at the recent meeting of the "Law and Order League" at Macauley's Theatre, in Louisville, created such a sensation, and which made the members of that "league" look like thirty cents" and some of them feel like counterfeit copper, has a series of letters published in the Louisville Times. These letters contain many pungent paragraphs which should furnish food for thought among people who sincerely believe in the "golden rule." In the first of these letters, published in last Saturday's Times, after reviewing the conditions of the fight between the tobacco trust and the growers, the following is a sample of some of the pertinent questions she asks, but which will hardly be answered by Dr. Powell, Governor Wilson or other leaders of the League:

"If you are a lawyer, put yourself in the position occupied by the tobacco grower. Have a client demand your services, and, having received them, give you such a fee as pleases him—taking care only that you subsist in such fashion as to be able to represent him when next he needs an advocate. If you are an editor, let your readers fix their own price upon your paper and you advertisers take your space at their own figures. If you are a minister, let some church demand your services, and when they have been given decide without consulting you what you are to receive. If you are a physician, give your skill in ministry to the sick, and then accept without question the compensation offered you. If you are a merchant, let your customers help themselves from your stock and then hand you over the counter such returns as they see fit to make—and remember you cannot help it—that or no sale. This is precisely the position in which the tobacco trust has put the tobacco growers. Now, lawyers, preachers, physicians, merchants, editors might be found willing to do business on just this plan. They would be very popular with the trade, but would they not demoralize your business or profession, and would they not reduce the scale of living, not only in the individual family, but throughout your guide? How would you meet such a condition?"—Farmers Home Journal.

Are you a member of a farmer's organization? If not join something else. We would prefer to join that triumphant army of 35,000 patriotic Kentuckians who are to-day marching in the Equity ranks in this state, but if not convenient join something else, and let your "mite" and influence go to help in the fight against the organized enemies of the farmer.

This is no time for bickering among the farming element. When you attack any other farmers' organization you are tearing down your own. The fellow who goes about "knocking" is not fit to belong to any, and is a tool in the hands of the enemy.

"Equityite" and "Unionite" are synonymous terms for "night rider" in the vocabulary of many high in authority and the farmer is not given credit for sincerity or good motives in organizing, to oppose those who would reduce us to a serfdom equal to that of despotic Russia.

It has been charged in many sections of the state that the farmers organizations are backing up the night riders and abetting them to escape justice when brought to trial. We feel that the farmer of Crittenden county stands for Equity and justice all the way down the line. And if the alleged night riders who have been indicted in this county are given a fair, square deal, and not persecuted instead of prosecuted, and not railroaded through the courts as has been charged in some sections of the state, Equity and Union will say amen to the verdict. But the people will demand fair play, and would not endorse means that might deprive any man of a fair and impartial trial, there by sending innocent men to the penitentiary to appease the wrath of a few trust magnates who have felt their grip gradually loosened until the Kentucky tobacco raiser is now free.

The next payroll for Kentucky's army of occupation will round up about $50,000 to be borne by the taxpayers of the state, in less than eight months of the reign of Augustus the First. Many brilliant campaigns have been planned and executed. Sixteen Riders have been slain, and so effective has been the work of the soldiers that fifteen of them were so completely annihilated that not a trace of them can be found. For like Moses no one knows their place of burial. The other one seems to have been killed by a citizens posse, in the Hopkinsville raid. But the coroners jury was more liberal and gave the military the credit for the death of the old negro in the same city. Let us be liberal and render unto Caesar such things as belong to Caesar.

The conviction of Dr. Champion for night riding in the Birmingham raid, will be heralded by a subsidized press as another victory against the Riders, when in reality it was but the outcome of race prejudice and two years ago would have been called a mild case of whitecapping.

Ninety-nine per cent of Crittenden county tobacco crop for 1908 has already been pooled. The other one per cent is ready to pool as soon as the books are open again. The Equity pool known here as the District Stemming Association has cleaned up her decks and has not a pound left of three years crops, but is waiting to take on board this year's crop, take it to people who are waiting for it to grow, giving us in return fair treatment, good prices, and quick returns. These are three things which make the farmer happy.

Big Olla James Says Kentucky Is Going Democratic.

Lincoln, Neb., July 7.—In his conference with Bryan to-day James renounced all claims on the vice presidency. He assured the Nebraskan that his nomination for vice-president would not be wise, as Kentucky is going Democratic anyhow, and the vice-presidency should be used to strengthen the ticket. James says Kern and Mitchell are both strong in Kentucky.

James is bitter toward Judge Parker on account of the Cleveland resolution. "If Parker wants to clear the field of mortuary literature let him write his own obituary, he is dead anyhow," said the big Kentuckian. James will speak at the Bryan banquet here to-night. Bryan made him take lunch at Fairview.

Rumors That a Caldwell County Farmer Is Missing. Troops Sent.

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 3.—Some of the soldiers who had been stationed in Trigg county came here last night and left, it is believed, for Cobb, Caldwell county, where it is likely a permanent camp will be established. The latest depredation in Western Kentucky is reported to have taken place in the territory between Cerulean Springs and Cobb.

There is a persistent rumor that a young farmer near the Caldwell county line was taken out of his home on the night of May 17 by night riders and has not been heard from since. One theory is that he was murdered, as he had previously been threatened. A barn in the same neighborhood was destroyed by fire while the owner was away. It is reported that the people of Cobb are much opposed to having soldiers stationed there, and that they will refuse to sell the camp supplies.

Night Trains Taken off.

Owing to the I. C. giving up their lease on the Tennessee Central, two night trains, one due at 10:13 p. m. north bound, and 4:50 a. m. South bound, have been taken off the run.

These two trains were the Nashville and Chicago limited.

This gives Marion only four passenger trains a day.

Bear at Large; Man Missing.

Princeton, Ky., July 2.—Excitement prevails here on account of a large black bear being seen in the woods near Lake Rabbit, one mile north of Princeton. A few days ago a man with a bear passed thru this city, and the bear seen today is supposed to be the one in charge of the man, who when last seen was drunk. The general supposition is that the man was killed and torn to pieces by the bear.

TOBACCO TIDINGS.

Those who, in January 1905, pooled a fraction of the 1904 crop—say six hundred hogsheads—were the pioneers in the co-operation movement in Henderson county.

Ewing Rankin, on behalf of the old committee, has been making final distribution of the proceeds of that old pool. He informed this writer yesterday he had paid off every member of that old pool in full, save only five. He says there are eight receipts yet out, which are payable to five owners. If these are not called for within the next week I shall publish names of parties to whom checks are payable. It must never be forgotten the members of this old pool realized 85 per cent, of the face value of warehouse receipts two years ago—in 1906.

I do not know of a single candidate for any office who is not a strong friend of the Association. Many of the candidates are not members of the Association—because not eligible to membership. And yet some of the gentlemen who are not eligible to membership in the Association, because non-producers of tobacco, are, nevertheless, members of the Society of Equity, to which society all good citizens of good and approved character in accord with farmers' co-operation are eligible.

Members of the Association should therefore be extremely careful, and extremely impartial, lest they be charged with running the Association into politics. The Association needs the sympathy and support of men of all parties, whether Democrats, Republicans, Independents or Socialists. In this Association are members who belong to all parties.

In a private letter to me the other day one of the executive committee stated the true position of the Association, in the following words: "It won't do to run this tobacco Association into politics, for, if the farmers do, it will soon go down. We should always vote for the man best qualified for the place." That is the true test—"vote for the man best qualified for the place." If that man happens to be a member of the Association—all right. If he doesn't happen to be a member of the Association, why, then, it is all right, too. Association members in Hopkins and Union counties should bear in mind the election in said counties will be held Saturday, July 4th. There is no more important duty appealing to members than this matter of the selection of committeemen. The very best and wisest men from each magisterial district should be chosen to serve the Association. For the county boards elect the Executive Committee and the Executive Committee conducts the colossal affairs of the Association.

The election for committeemen in Crittenden county comes off on the second Saturday in July, the 11th. And in Henderson and Webster counties on the 4th Saturday, July 25th. JAS. N. FAIRBANKS, Sec'y.

Last week's Locals.

Mrs. Sallie Flanary has gone to Henderson to attend the League conference. She will spend ten days or two weeks at Marion before returning home.—Princeton Leader.

We are in receipt of a package of fine comb honey in one pound sections from Dr. S. M. Leeper, of Fredonia, which is the best we have seen this year.

Gray Rochester left Tuesday for Henderson to attend the League conference.

Misses Mary Louise Myers, Louise Pettet, of Princeton, and Florence Stinson, of Evansville, are the guests of Miss Marian Clement.

Mr. and Mrs. Goe. Robinson, of McNary, Ky., are the guests of his father, J. H. Robinson and family.

Miss Reading, of Evansville, is visiting Miss Elizabeth Lawson.

Will The Hotel Latham be Closed?

Several times lately we have heard that Hotel Latham is to be closed to-morrow. This should not be. Are our people going to permit a thing like this? A city of 12,000 or 13,000 people without a first class hotel? We guess not. If Mr. Brewer cannot see it to his interest to remain here there must be others who will take hold of the best hotel in the country.—Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

Proprietors Fight Over Guests at Depot And One Is Shot.

Lebanon, Ky., June 30.—J. D. and Virgil Bobbitt and John Hardesty, Jr., and Ham Hardesty, rival hotel keepers, fought at the depot here over guests. John Hardesty was shot and two of the others were badly battered. All will recover. They were arrested. While such occurrences as these noted above may take place at other towns. Our genial land lord moves along in the even tenure of his way keeping the best house along the I. C. R. R. Nothing is a better advertisement for a city than a good hotel. It causes the kindest feelings to arise in the breast of the traveler for the place and all its people.

Notice to The Tobacco Growers of Crittenden County.

You will observe by examining the constitution and by-laws of the stemming district tobacco Association, that each county in said district is requested to select one delegate from each magisterial district to form a county board for the purpose of transacting all business pertaining to the sale of dispositions of our 18 of tobacco. The chairman of said county board according to the constitution will be a member of the executive board of the district at Henderson, therefore I request all tobacco growers to meet in their respective magisterial districts on Saturday, July 25th, 1908, at 2 p. m., and perform this important duty and those who are elected as delegates from the various districts in the county will meet at Marion on the first day of August, to organize a county board. Any competent man residing in your district who is a tobacco grower, is eligible to be a delegate, he is not required to be a member of any other organization other than the stemming district tobacco Association and if he has pooled his tobacco that makes him a member of that same magisterial district have two or more voting places, for the benefit of those, I would suggest that the voters of Piney district meet at Iron Hill and the Marion district in which Squire James resides, will meet at tobacco factory near the depot, and Dycusburg district will meet at Frances, Union at Levis, Hurricane at Sheridan, Fords Ferry at their usual voting place, Bells Mines at Rosebud and Squire Postleweight district at the court house.

I would suggest that at each place of meeting that some tobacco grower call the meeting to order and state the object of the meeting then nominate some one for chairman the nominations for delegates will be in order after which the chairman will take the vote and the one receiving the most votes will be your delegate. Hoping this notice will be understood by all tobacco growers and that the delegates elected will have no selfish motives of their own, but the good of the Association at heart only. This notice will not appear in print but once, therefore keep it. AARON TOWERY, chairman.

FIVE PERISH IN FIRE

EXPLOSION WRECKS CHICAGO
CHEMICAL PLANT.

EMPLOYEES TRAPPED IN BASEMENT

Bodies Are Recovered From Building
Wrecked by Blowing Up of Chemicals.

Chicago, June 26.—Five bodies have been taken from the ruins of the Pabst Chemical Company's plant, 176-178 Huron street, wrecked by an explosion, and a sixth is reported to have been found. The bodies removed are those of Mrs. Jane Nolan and her four children, Mary, Jennie, Emma and Helen. Twelve women and seven men were severely burned.

A sheet of flames followed the explosion, which occurred in the basement. Employees of the company were trapped at their work in the basement and first and second floors. The third and fourth floors were occupied as living apartments. The family that perished was on the third floor.

The 12 women burned were at work on the first floor. The explosion threw them from their feet. Their clothes were on fire before they could rise.

The girls rushed to a window and leaped to the street. One man jumped from a second story window. He is dying at the Polyclinic Hospital.

John McDonald, member of the Fire Department, was fatally scalded when engine No. 1 overturned.

Joseph May, 3 years old, 184 Huron street, was dangerously cut by glass. He was playing in the street.

A number of women were caught on the roof of the building. Their clothes were on fire, and they beat each other's garments. Firemen carried them down a ladder to the roof of a building on the east. They were attended in a neighboring manufacturing plant by police ambulance physicians.

The explosion practically demolished the building. The fire spread so rapidly that employees of the chemical company were on fire before they had recovered from the shock of the explosion.

Edits Cut Off

The exits to the street were cut off. The men and women fought and struggled to reach the roof.

Helen and Elsie Best were on the first floor. They were knocked down and burned.

"The fire followed the explosion so quickly that we were wrapped in a sheet of flame," declared Helen Best. The girls were carried to the plant of Theodore Koch, barber supplies, adjoining that of the chemical company.

Capt. Ellis Harper is Killed.

Lebanon, Tenn., June 26.—Capt. Ellis Harper was shot and instantly killed here today by William Sutt. Harper, it is said, attacked Sutt with a stick.

Sutt, who is a Patterson man, it is alleged, wrote an article for a Nashville paper at which Harper, who is a Carmack man, took offense.

Capt. Harper was a picturesque figure during the Civil War and was a noted Confederate raider.

Murdered Man Found in Boxcar.

Bloomington, Ill., June 26.—The body of a murdered man, thought to be John Tighe of Nevada, Mo., was discovered in a Chicago Alton boxcar in the yards here. There was evidence of a desperate battle. A union card bearing Tighe's name is the only clue to the identity. The man's age was about 35.

The flood is receding rapidly. The gauge at St. Louis marked 33.8 feet Thursday morning, a fall of 3 in the last 24 hours. It will drop 4 in the next 24 hours, according to the forecast.

Fleet Receives Orders.

Washington, June 26.—Preliminary sailing orders have been issued by Rear Admiral Pittsburg, Acting Secretary of the Navy, to Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, for the second cruise of the battle ships on their way around the world. It is expected the ships will lift anchor at sunrise, July 7.

Mrs. Gould Asks Divorce.

New York, June 26.—Papers in a suit for absolute divorce were served on Frank J. Gould Wednesday at the instance of his wife, who was formerly Miss Helen Kelly. The service was made in Mr. Gould's office as he was about to go out for luncheon. He expressed no surprise.

Eight Injured in Collision.

St. Paul, Minn., June 26.—Eight persons were injured shortly after midnight when a freight train on the Milwaukee road struck the circus train of the Hagenback & Wallace shows in the St. Paul yards.

Minnesota Tornado Kills Child.

Mountain Lake, Minn., June 26.—A tornado passed about five miles northwest of here Tuesday night, demolishing at least a dozen farm buildings. B. C. Klassen, arriving home, found his wife covered with planks and boards and their youngest child crushed to death.

Old Baseball Player Dies.

Des Moines, Ia., June 26.—William F. Traffey, once manager of the Baltimore team and manager of the Des Moines team in 1880, when they made a world's record of 25 games won in succession, died here Wednesday of tuberculosis, aged 48 years.

In Loving Remembrance.

As the shadows of night were gathering fast, the angel of death crept stealthily by and flapped his dark wings o'er the aged form of Mr. James P. Sullenger, April 24th 1908.

He was born June 17th 1840 and was a useful and honored citizen of the neighborhood in which he lived. He was a member of the Christian church, at Liberty Grove and will be greatly missed, for he was always present.

He was the son of old Dr. Sullenger, the husband of Miss Harriet Bebout, and the father of thirteen children three of whom are dead.

Grandfather had entered the evening of his life, the golden sunset clouds were gathering in the sky and casting their beautiful light about his aged form as he trudged up the rugged mountain of life, but, alas! how soon the storm in all its fury arose and the dark, angry clouds did hide the peaceful sunset from our view, then when his awful work was finished passed on leaving us with down-cast eyes and bleeding hearts to view the sickening sight of his destruction.

But since in his grave he lies asleep, and the past cannot be undone we can only hope to meet him in a better world above.

It is a relief to think, we shall sleep, but not forever.

There will be a glorious dawn, we shall meet to part never on the resurrection morn. But still, it is so hard to part from those that we love and know that their lives here on earth are spent.

God knoweth best and he has taken his wearied servant home.

To the heart-broken wife and children, please take comfort in believing that the spirit of your departed husband and father is commended to the gracious tender care of Him who does all things well, and when your lives on earth are ended and the golden gates are thrown wide may the angels guide your foot steps to your precious loved one's side.

A loved one from our home is gone

A voice we loved is stilled.

A place is vacant in our home Which never can be filled.

Obituary.

The death angel visited the home of William J. King at Fair View, Ill., June 9th, 1908, and taken away his darling wife and infant son.

Their remains were brought back home and laid to rest in the Union graveyard by her father, Mr. Jap Millikan, who died several years ago.

Sophia Millikan King was born April 2nd, 1886, she being twenty-two years two months and seven days old. Departed this life June 9th, 1908. She was married to William King, August 24th, 1907, by Rev. R. A. LaRue. She professed faith in Christ Oct. 1906 and joined the Baptist church at Union where she was laid to await the resurrection morn. She leaves besides her husband, to mourn her loss, her mother, Mrs. J. H. Bateman, three brothers, Wallace, Roy and Ray and three sisters, Mrs. Leslie Davidson, Minnie and Cordie and a host of relatives and friends.

The writer will say that she loved

Sophia and knows that she lived a true Christian life, she had a sweet disposition and was loved by all who knew her, she was an obedient daughter, loving sister and a true wife.

I will say to the bereaved ones that I know how sad it is for us to give Sophia up but we know what is our loss, is her eternal gain. I must say that I sympathize deeply with you, but we must look to God who governs our destiny and in whom we must look for comfort in these trying trials who has promised to be with us in all our sad bereavements, I feel that we have the assurance that Sophia has just crossed over the river of death and if we will follow her foot steps we will meet her in that land where parting is no more. ### Witness of Brainy Unbelievers

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D.,
Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Mouth)
Church, Chicago.

Men of brains, though they be not Christians, cannot fail to give to the Bible a very high place as a literary, ethical and religious force in the world.

Such a man was Benjamin Franklin, who said: "Young man, my advice to you is that you cultivate an acquaintance with, and a firm belief in, the Holy Scriptures, for this is your certain interest."

Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the "Declaration of Independence," said: "I have said, and always will say, that the studious perusal of the sacred volume will make better citizens, better fathers and better husbands."

Daniel Webster, than whom a brainier man has not lived under our flag, said: "The Bible is the book of all others for lawyers as well as divines, and I pity the man who cannot find in it a rich supply of thought and rule of conduct."

"It is a belief in the Bible," wrote Goethe, "which has served me as a guide of my moral and literary life. No criticism will be able to perplex the confidence we have in a writing whose contents have stirred up and given vital life and energy by its own. The further the ages advance in civilization the more the Bible will be used."

Matthew Arnold has not been accused of sympathy with Christianity, but he had brains and he wrote: "To the Bible men will return because they cannot do without it." The Bible Essential.

Diderot, the French unbeliever, when he looked from the ecclesiastical machine which he had cause to criticize, to the Bible itself, wrote: "No better lessons can I teach my child than those of the Bible."

Even Prof. Huxley, though he had a narrow, scientific spirit, was compelled to write: "I have always been in favor of secular education without theology, but I must confess that I have been no less seriously perplexed to know by what practical methods the religious feeling, which is the essential basis of moral conduct, is to be kept up in the present chaotic state of opinion on these matters without the use of the Bible."

Rousseau, strong and independent, though skeptical, wrote: "Peruse the books of philosophers, with all their pomp of diction. How meager, how contemptible are they when compared with the Scriptures. The majesty of the Scriptures strikes me with admiration."

We could fill volumes with quotations from famous Christian scholars, but these are from skeptical men of brains and culture who view the Bible simply as an intelligent, moral and educational force.

Webster's Strong Tribute.
Great men, though not Christians, give the same high estimate of Jesus Christ. Daniel Webster wrote: "I believe Jesus Christ to be the Son of God. The miracles which he wrought establish in my mind his personal authority and render it proper for me to believe what he asserts."

Ralph Waldo Emerson said: "Jesus is the most perfect of all men that have yet appeared."

Napoleon Bonaparte, with a mind as discriminating and logical as Webster's, held the same view. "I know men," said Napoleon, "and I tell you Jesus Christ was not a man. Superficial minds see a resemblance between Christ and the founders of empires and the gods of other religions. That resemblance does not exist. There is between Christianity and other religions the distance of infinity. Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne and myself founded empires. But on what did we rest the creations of our genius? Upon sheer force. Jesus Christ alone founded his empire upon love; and at this hour millions of men will die for him."

On one occasion Gen. Bertrand expressed to Napoleon his doubt as to the deity of Christ. "If you do not believe that Jesus Christ was divine," returned Napoleon, "I did wrong to appoint you general." What Roman Wrote.

Ernest Renan, who lost his professorship in the University of Paris on account of his infidelity, wrote of Christ: "All history is incomprehensible without him. He created the object and fixed the starting point of the future faith of humanity. He is the incomparable man to whom the universal conscience has decreed the title of Son of God, and that with justice. In the first rank of this grand family of true sons of God we must place Jesus. The highest consciousness of God that ever existed in the breast of humanity was that of Jesus. Repose now in thy glory, noble founder. Thy work is finished. Thy divinity is established. Thou shalt become the corner stone of humanity so entirely that to tear thy name from this world would rend it to its foundations. Between thee and God there will no longer be any distinction. Complete conqueror of death, take possession of thy kingdom, whither shall follow thee, by the royal road which thou hast traced, ages of adoring worshippers."

STANLEY AND DALZELL.
(By Savorard.)
Some three or four weeks ago the agricultural appropriation bill was under consideration in committee of the whole in the house of representatives, and on March 25, Mr. Stanley of Kansas got the floor and proceeded to reply to a very able speech by Mr. Dalzell, some time earlier, in which the accomplished statesman from Pennsylvania undertook to contrast Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson, much to the disparagement of the latter, and much to the credit of the former.
Mr. Dalzell got his history of the New England school—the Harvard set—Henry Adams, Henry Cabot Lodge, Theodore Roosevelt, and so on, not to forget William E. Curtis and Edward S. Ellis, and it made the sedate thinker from Pittsburg, ordinarily so wary and so accurate, a very credulous person. We see the somewhat similar when the brilliant mind of Gertrude Atherton contemplates Hamilton and Jefferson through the same historic spectacles.
Oswley Stanley's reply to Dalzell was crushing and conclusive. He painted the two men, Hamilton and Jefferson, precisely as they were, and placed them precisely where authentic history will put them—the Virginian the wisest of political philosophers; the West Indian the most brilliant of political adventurers. Many of Stanley's political friends tried to dissuade him from the encounter. They did not know much about Hamilton and Jefferson, but they knew a deal of John Dalzell, whose conclusions they had never embraced, but whose statements of facts they had never challenged.
Stanley did not dare to enter the lists without being armed cap-a-pie, and he spent a week of almost ceaseless investigation night and day. He searched fifty volumes and drew from manuscripts in the national library and the state department. When he began the Democrats were apprehensive and the Republicans confident. A few minutes the Democrats were sanguine and the Republicans confused. Both were astonished. Never before in more than 100 years of history-making had the American congress seen the two great fathers of American politics as they were and as they will be estimated by the future Gibbon or Hume.
Alexander Hamilton was born a British subject, in the insignificant island of Nevis, in the West Indies. His father was a Scotchman and his mother a French woman. In his earliest youth he gave earnest of the splendid genius of which nature had endowed him. Ere he was twenty he was the first political controversialist in the colony of New York, whether with tongue or pen. His motto might have been:
"Why, then, the world's mine oyster,
Which I with mind will open."
As a political writer he was greater than Paine and little inferior to Burke. As an orator he was, perhaps, second to Henry only of the Revolutionary generation. Had he gone to London he would have been capable of filling a bigger place in English annals than the younger Pitt. Had he gone to France and escaped the Terror he might have been second to Napoleon Bonaparte alone, an honest Talleyrand, a more fortunate Messera.
Instead, Hamilton came to America and assumed the role of Hampden. He opposed Lord North, not for the tax he levied so much as the principle it involved. It was a little bit of a tax, a great piece of folly on the part of the ministry, though not oppressive; but it allowed to be a precedent, it was in the power of the crown to make serfs of the colonists. Hamilton entered the army and became the secretary of the commander-in-chief, and in the field he was as faring as he was able in the forum. That arch-flatterer and matchless scoundrel, Talleyrand, declared that Hamilton was greater than Napoleon or Fox, which is all both; but Hamilton's eulogists are absurd enough to take what the unscrupulous French miscreant said for his real opinion. Well might the shade of Hamilton pray to be delivered from American history as she is writ.
Hamilton is actually held up as the father of the constitution, when the one thing for which he had more contempt than for that instrument was the Articles of Confederation which it supplanted. As for patriotism—the real stuff, not the brand described by Walpole—Hamilton had none, and it was impossible for him to have any, having expatriated himself at the age of sixteen years. The patriotism that springs from the heart and fills the soul is not a plant that can be carried from clime to clime. The patriot is made of the boy that plays around the apple symbols in the orchard, recites in the shade of trees in happy boyhood. It is "country" in the subconscious as it is imparted from uncle to nephew, and it is all over and around the playground. Washington and Henry, Adams and Putnam, Rutledge and Marion, were patriots. So were all George Clinton and Philip Schuyler. These were "Native and to the manor born."
But Hamilton, the adventurer, was not, and could not be, moved by the sentiments that were natural to these men.
Hamilton made one great speech in the constitutional convention, and then he disappears; but the romancers—one of whom makes him a compound of Aristides, Cincinnatus and Scipio Africanus—say that Hamilton wrought more effectively for the constitution you can pardon the acceptor of a challenge and condemn the sender. By that barbarous code he who was charged with an infamous offense could not clear his skirts by proving its falsity. To prove the charge false and to fail to resist it was to aggravate the imputation of cowardice, in that day more odious than vice or crime. The same perverted public opinion which necessitated the acceptance forced the sending of a challenge.

Could a retort be more conclusive? If Hamilton was a martyr of the barbarous code when he accepted, it necessarily follows that Burr was also a martyr when it required him to send the challenge.
Those fond of the brilliant, the ornate, the exuberant, the splendid, can find it in these passages with which Stanley closed his speech:
"For centuries neither the telescope of the astronomer nor the microscope of science could solve the mystery of that misty light, that glimmering gossamer enshrouding the brow of night; at last the spectrum revealed in this nebula unborn worlds, held in a shimmering gauze; revolving masses of incandescent gas, cooling through the passing cycles of time, growing denser without, shrinking within, forming smoky concentric circles, a whirling luminous fog, congealing into molten rings drawn by their own gravity into rude globes, and these spinning spheres shaped by the plastic hand of Divinity like clay upon a potter's wheel, into planets and their satellites, new solar systems, swinging for the first time into their orbits in the trackless, fathomless depths above. Thus God peoples the heavens with radiant worlds."
"I have fancied that those daring bands of exiles, forgotten by one world and lost in the dark wilds of another, living and dying in ignorance of the mighty destiny of their children's children, conscious only that they were free—I have fancied that He, 'with whom a thousand years are as a day or a watch in the night when it is passed,' saw an unborn and pulsant nation through all the mists of misery, persecution and death, through which succeeding generations passed, first to independence, then to the mastery of the land and sea."
"In the vast womb of the wilderness the colonies took form, though varying in their orbits and splendor, but they differed only as one star differs from another star in glory." In the hour of destiny each found its own place about the great central power, to which, like the planets, they were eternally bound, yet forever separate. The fathers, I declare to you, heard the voice of God when they covered this continent with states, even as the heavens are bespangled with stars."
"The same peril awaits the star and the state. The state discovered from her sisters is lost, even as a planet wrenched from its moorings, comet-like, becomes the wandering vagrant of the skies."
"Either, drawn by the compelling gravity of a central force into its mighty vortex, is annihilated by the power which should have been the source of light and life."
"From the chaos of disunion and the wreck of centralization may be who ordained long preserve this constellation of states."
"Let no new Hamilton arise to disturb or destroy their exquisite balance—harmonious, distinct, indissoluble, they shall remain eternal as the revolving stars."
For years and years the dogmatism of Hamilton's eulogists has dominated American public thought. I only wish that Oswley Stanley would take time to elaborate this splendid speech of his and offer it to some leading magazine. It would carry confusion into every Hamilton camp, and shake the walls of Harvard College themselves.

Letter From Oklahoma.
Alva, Okla., June 24th, 1908.—
Editor Record-Press: I will try to write a few lines as I promised I would.
I left Marion on the 11th day of Feb. and landed in Alva the 13th, we went to Jesse Bruce's that night, the next morning we were surprised to find one of the worst blizzards raging I ever felt, the wind was blowing and the snow was flying to beat a pension, the snow drifted up in some places until it was two or three feet deep in some places while the ground was not covered in other places, the blizzard let up in the afternoon and what a time the boys had catching jack rabbits that evening and next day, the dog would get after them and they would run the snow where it was drifted and there they would catch them. The snow did not last very long.
On Sunday morning, the 16th, we went five or six miles further south to one of Jesse's daughters, we passed the place where Jesse first located in Oklahoma, he set some trees and it was astonishing to see how those trees had grown. There is no timber here in this part of Oklahoma except what the people has set out, it being set out in rows it looks nice, they set any kind of tree they can get hold of here, I have seen the old thorn tree set out, plowed hoed, the people think a lot of their trees here they cultivate them the same as they do their crops, they have fine orchards in this portion of Oklahoma. On the 17th, of Feb. we came to Alva and rented a house of four rooms for ten dollar per month. Alva is a town with a population of 5000 inhabitants and is a pretty town, Alva has the prettiest shade trees I ever saw, this city has four large school buildings, eleven churches, the court house is in the center of the square and the square is two blocks east and west and one block north and south with concrete walks running diagonal from the corners to the court house, the jail is under the court house. All around this square are business houses, some good ones and some sorry ones, some little frames plenty of them is fine kindling to burn the rest of them some day, the contractors are tearing out some of them and will build brick houses in their places, the foundations of the new buildings will be 36 inches wide, the thought struck me that I would like to see A. C. and Leslie Melton at work on such a wall just to see how many brick they would put down in a day, of course the masons here don't get enough to justify them to rush, they get 75 cents per hour and work eight hours a day. There is a sixteen foot concrete walk in front of the business houses all around the square, there five banks in this city and also water works and they are now putting in the sewer system, there is one flouring mill, one cement mill, three grain elevators, ice plant, laundry, creamery, cotton gin, furniture factory, two machine shops, one bottling house, five hotels, four lumber yards, and not a plaining mill in town, the carpenters have to rip out all of his material to make his door and window frames and everything done by hand. I have made forty-five frames since have been here. I will say to the carpenters that there has been lots of work and plenty now, but there is lots of men to do the work, as to carpenter wages they run from twenty to thirty-five cents per hour, I have been getting thirty cents per hour when I worked by the hour, I am idle this week waiting on some plastering, so we went to the country yesterday we went to Jesse Bruce a distance of twelve miles south. The harvest is on now we saw twenty headers and one binder at work in the wheat fields, the wheat crop is good and the people are counting on from 15 to 20 bushels per acre, corn looks fine but it is very low, every thing here seems grow short, th trees all bunch out and are low, the wheat is not over 2 or 2½ feet high, the corn is tasseling at should high but the what is as thick as it can stick and the corn stalks are as large as your arm. We enjoyed our trip to Jesse Bruce very much he has lots of fruit and that that is fine to, Mrs. Bruce loaded our buggy with the finest plums you ever saw and we went our way rejoicing, the farmer makes the money here he does all his work a riding, such as breaking, planting, cultivating and harvesting, the merchant gets his part of it to, every thing is high here, when you go to do any thing for them they pay you well for it and when you buy of them you pay well for what you get, but I like high prices both ways some things I can do without.

The people all seem friendly and sociable they are not stuck up as one might suppose. There are no Indians around Alva, I have not seen an Indian since I have been here, there no negroes here I have not seen a colored person except porters on the trains since I have been in Oklahoma.
I have just been out in town and I stopped in at J. D. Scott's place of business and he always has something to say about back east, I like to talk with him, he is going to do some building, he says we are going have a big time the fourth, every body is coming to town that day, there will all kinds of attractions, basket dinner on the ground and everything free. All states will be represented, the Kentuckians are going to have a parade, there are several of us here and we will make a big show I guess.
Well I will close, if this finds space in your paper I may write again.
Yours truly,
You Know Who.
